

Recollections

This is a list of the noteworthy events in my life.

Visualizing nothing as a very young kid

The man in the dark tossing pebbles at my bedroom window when I was in a crib

My high school friends intervention to address my believing I was stupid

I have so many clear memories from very early childhood

The 1977 ELP concert

Playing with Anabell Lee

Working the SoCal fires

Leading the way into the house with the killer hiding in with the dogs in the yard

Shooting at the car chase of the guys that killed the cops

The radio station that reported the UFO and the next day was a different format

Rudy telling me about he and his mother being in witness protection, and the next day they were gone

Romiing SoCal on bike

The Preacher and Moonchild Mass

Playing Tarkus to get Jim Smith's attention

The shior semoniar at the Charpenter's school

All my hacking experiences

That night in CO with snow on the ground and me lurking around outside.

Sitting in the car riding for days on freeways and back roads. Listening to AM radio with a single ear bud. Imagining the lives of the people and places we passed.

Stopping in Yellowstone where a deer had been hit and killed, and people were getting out of their cars to get pictures of their kids with the feeding bears!

Ridding on the ferry in the pudget sound

Being outside on a cool SoCal night in Riverside with the air full of orange blossoms.
Intoxication.

Going down for the alter call at that baptist church in 6th grade. My family could not believe it.
Then when they came to visit, my dad said the he would teach me any religion I needed to hear.
But then he never did teach me anything, intentionally.
